Supreme Court Pays Tribute to Justice Jackson

Jurist Dies of Heart Seizure;
Praised by Warren

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court met in brief and solemn ceremony today to pay tribute to Justice Robert H. Jackson, who died suddenly Saturday.

Speaking for the tribunal, Chief Justice Earl Warren said Jackson "lived and died useful to the end."

Mr. Warren praised his colleague's wise counsel and "great contributions."

Jackson, 62, died of a heart seizure on his way to his court office.

The high marble chamber was filled when the black-robed justices filed to their seats at noon. Jackson's empty leather chair, second from the right, was draped with black crepe as was the bench in front of it.

After the eulogy the court adjourned until Thursday noon when it will announce some of the cases it will hear during this new term which opened officially last Monday.

"Today the chair of our brother Jackson is vacant and we are sad indeed," Mr. Warren said, as the justices flanking him listened gravely.

"Able lawyer, statesman and jurist, his passing leaves a great void in this court. We shall miss greatly his wise counsel, his clarity of expression and his genial companionship," Warren said.

After funeral services Tuesday at Washington Cathedral, Mr. Warren said, the late justice's body "will then be taken tenderly to Jamestown, N. Y., the little city of his youth, where, in pleasant and familiar surroundings, it will abide in peace among his earliest friends."

The body will lie in state in Jamestown Wednesday and burial will be in Frewsburg, near Jamestown.

Jackson, an ardent New Dealer and close friend of Franklin D. Roosevelt, died Saturday after suffering a heart attack while driving into Washington from his home in nearby McLean, Va.

Stevenson, Nixon, Hall And Mitchell Clash On Aiding President Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1954 election campaign rolled into the final three weeks today with the Republicans and Democrats arguing furiously over who has done more to help President Eisenhower.

Adlai Stevenson, Vice President Richard M. Nixon, and the chairman of the GOP and Democratic national committees all clashed over the issue in weekend statements and speeches.

Stevenson, titular head of the Democratic Party, said in Phoenix, Ariz., Sunday, that the most important issue at debate in the 83rd Congress was the Democratic defense of the President "against an irresponsible Republican majority." And he said this defense was considerable. Nixon lashed back as he moved his campaign into his home territory of California. He told reporters Stevenson is guilty of "destructive criticism" and that he, "like other Democratic leaders, had no constructive suggestions to offer."

Republican Congress Asked
Leonard W. Hall, chairman of the Republican National Committee, said Sunday night that President Eisenhower must have a Republican congress to help carry out the rest of his legislative program. He said the Democrats had "played politics" in the past—on farm and tax legislation—and would do so again.

In reply, Democratic Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell criticized the President for predicting a "cold war" between the legislative and executive branches if the Democrats capture control of Congress next month.

He said Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon D. Johnson and House Democratic Leader Sam Rayburn already had advised the President there would be no fighting because "it takes two to run a war."

Hall countered that the record of the last two years show Mr. Eisenhower has a right to fear trouble from the Democrats. He also rapped Mitchell for "trying to impugn what the President says."

Hall And Mitchell Debate
Hall and Mitchell debated the Republican record on the first of a series of four radio-TV debates. On other political issues:

Stevenson: Charged in a Hollywood speech Saturday night that the Eisenhower administration has given the nation "20 months of bluff and bluster, confusion and contradictions" in the field of foreign policy.

Sen. Homer E. Capehart (R-Ind.): Said Sunday night that Stevenson is being "ridiculous and silly" if he is trying to link housing irregularities to the administration.

Nixon: Declared Republicans are "working as hard as we can" in the congressional campaign and that he is "confident we will win." Nixon will spend four days in California plumping for the "entire Republican ticket."

Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.): Charged Sunday that the Eisenhower administration has failed to make good on its pledge to strengthen U. S. foreign policy.

In a television interview Sunday night, Capehart said it was a "most silly, ridiculous, asinine" thing for the FHA employees to argue that Powell has been a victim of "partisan politics."

He told Mr. Eisenhower in the ether, which was dated Sunday, that "I should like to discuss this whole matter with you at your earliest convenience."

$300,000 Damage By Marion Fire

MARION, Ill. (AP) — A fire which destroyed a building used for expansion by Sangamo Electric Co. capacitor division near here Saturday caused damage estimated at $300,000.

H. L. Kunz, Sangamo vice-president and manager of the division, made the estimate today as an investigation was under way to determine exact losses. He said the loss includes the building, equipment, products and materials in the building.

The fire broke out Saturday in the building leased from the government at the old Illinois Ordnance Plant west of here. Cause of the fire has not been determined.

Eisenhower to Delay Filling Court Vacancy

Judge Medina Most Often Mentioned
For Jackson Post

DENVER (AP) — President Eisenhower is not expected to deliberate seriously upon filling the Supreme Court vacancy until he returns to Washington after this last week of his western vacation.

It was learned Sunday night that Mr. Eisenhower intends to scrutinize the qualifications of a number of high-ranking federal jurists at length and to hold long administration conferences in Washington before announcing his choice to succeed Associate Justice Robert H. Jackson, who died Saturday.

Most often mentioned in the normal speculation around the Denver White House was Judge Harold Medina of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, along with several other members of the federal bench.

Judge Medina's job — like forebearance while he presided at the marathon trial of the 11 Communist leaders in New York brought him national acclaim. And Mr. Eisenhower is known to be impressed with Medina's distinguished judicial record.

Rule Out Dewey, Dulles
Members of the White House staff ruled out the possibility that the appointment would go to either retiring Gov. Thomas Dewey of New York or to Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. And dual circumstances appeared to scotch any likelihood that Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr., would receive the nomination.

President Eisenhower clearly considers Dulles to be irreplaceable, at least for the foreseeable future.

Brownell is one of the President's highest political advisors and is considered very valuable to the executive branch as attorney general. Moreover, Democrats in the Senate would raise stern resistance to his confirmation, because Brownell so chasteningly condemned both former President Truman and the Democratic party in the Harry Dexter White case.

As for Governor Dewey, administration leaders have taken at face value his decision to quit private life in favor of private law practice to enhance his financial position.

The inquiry into the disaster will be heard by Capt. R. M. Hoyle, chief of the Fifth Naval District in Norfolk. Others on the board will be Cmdr. W. J. Conley and Lt. Cmdr. M. E. Meekins.

Most of the survivors and bodies were plucked from the sea Saturday by the little Greek ship Macedonia. The SS Maritime Trader and the Monroe Victory also picked up some survivors and transferred them to the destroyer escorts.

Third Student Dies of Injuries

GALESBURG, Ill. (AP) — A third Knox College student, injured in an auto accident which resulted from an inter-collegiate beer drinking "contest," died Saturday.

William Anzalone 22, Chicago, who had been in critical condition since the Oct. 2 accident, died in St. Mary's hospital of third degree burns and other injuries.

A fourth student, James Zourek, 19, Cicero, escaped serious injury in the accident in which two others were suffocated and burned to death. The auto in which the students were returning from the drinking "contest" crashed and burned.

Five students have been expelled from the college because of alleged participation in the beer drinking contest.

New Civil Service Report Reveals 6,926 Fired or Resigned on Loyalty

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government disclosed today that 6,926 federal employees had been fired or had resigned from their jobs under the administration's loyalty-security program.

The Civil Service Commission released the new figures on loyalty security discharges. The new total compares with 2,486 reported last March as having been ousted or resigned.

The commission said that of the new totals, 2,611 employees had been fired because of security reasons and 4,315 had resigned before determination of their cases had been completed.

The commission said that of these who were fired or had resigned there was information against 1,743 indicating, in varying degrees, subversive activities, subversive associations, or membership in subversive organizations.

Its release is certain to set off more Democratic-Republican political debate over how effective the Eisenhower administration program is ridding the federal payroll

Eldorado Story On Nation-Wide TV Tuesday Night

"The Eldorado Story" will be on a nation-wide TV show Tuesday evening, starting at 9:30, it has been announced.

A TV crew was in Eldorado during the week of June 21-26 to film various "bootstrap" activities, including the Bandwagon Parade on Monday, June 21. The crew was back in Eldorado over the week end, making some follow up shots for the show. The men left by airplane Sunday afternoon and were to arrive in New York last night.

Edward R. Murrow's "See It Now" nation-wide TV show will carry the Eldorado program and it will be over channel 5 Nashville and also from the Belleville TV station.

The 6,214-ton ship sank so suddenly last Thursday after gales from a nor-easter shifted its ore cargo that crewmen didn't have time to send an SOS or lower life boats.

Eleven survivors and 12 bodies of crewmen were brought here early Sunday by the destroyer escorts U.S.S. Bache and U.S.S. Eaton. The survivors were reported in satisfactory condition after fighting exhaustion, sunburn and sharks for more than 50 hours while clinging to makeshift rafts fashioned from floating debris.

The inquiry into the disaster will be heard by Capt. R. M. Hoyle, chief of the Fifth Naval District in Norfolk. Others on the board will be Cmdr. W. J. Conley and Lt. Cmdr. M. E. Meekins.

Most of the survivors and bodies were plucked from the sea Saturday by the little Greek ship Macedonia. The SS Maritime Trader and the Monroe Victory also picked up some survivors and transferred them to the destroyer escorts.

No Trace of Missing
The U. S. Coast Guard renewed the search for other possible survivors Sunday but found no traces of the missing men. Blimps, planes and surface craft were sent out to search the waters about 150 miles southeast of Cape Henry, N. C., where the ship went down.

Dr. Frank T. Zinn, medical officer in charge at the U. S. Public Health Service Hospital where the survivors were taken, said only the 80-degree warmth of the Gulf Stream water enabled the men to survive.

Three of the men were brought ashore on stretchers but the others were strong enough to walk. One of the bodies was that of a crewman whose legs had been amputated by a shark.

The survivors told gruesome tales about the ship's last moments and of fighting the long battle for survival in the water.

John A. Davis, utility deckman, said Capt. Patrick J. McMahon, 38, Valley Stream, L. I., N. Y., stayed at his post until the ship heeled over, then was trapped and went down with the vessel.

Party Workers Hold County GOP Rally Here

Republican party workers of Saline county met at the court house yesterday afternoon for a rally designed to get out the vote at the November 2 election.

This was the first of a series of organization meetings to be held by the Republicans. Next will be Sunday afternoon, Oct. 24, at the court house.

Robert G. Miley, chairman of the Saline County Republican Central committee, presided at yesterday's meeting, at which Charles J. Thompson, former Illinois Supreme Court justice, and State's Attorney Glen O. Jones spoke. Jones is the GOP nominee for state senator.

Thompson told of the necessity of a united effort to carry on the Republican campaign and urged public support of the entire Republican ticket, declaring that during the past 20 months, "great progress has been made in cleaning up the government and in extending to all the people of the United States much greater services and benefits for the taxes they are paying."

He urged Republican party workers to wholeheartedly support the President of the United States by electing a Republican congress to carry out Eisenhower's policies and plans.

Thompson also said that under the Republican administration "we have found peace, not only in the Korean conflict, but in all other parts of the globe."

Jones, in his address, stated that when the charges of the Democrats against the GOP administration are analyzed, it all boils down to the fact that the opposition "is not finding anything wrong—they just want it."

Reuben G. Soderstrom said in a speech prepared for delivery at the opening session of the ISFL's 72nd annual convention the maximum benefits should be raised to at least half the average weekly wage in Illinois, which he said is $76 per week.

Soderstrom said this was the intent when the first unemployment compensation act was passed 17 years ago. Then, he said, maximum benefits were $16, or 55 per cent of the average wage of $29.50.

Soderstrom told the convention the ISFL should also work for establishment of a safety division within the state labor department, with an appropriation big enough to hire at least 12 safety engineers.

"There are too many casualties of a preventable nature incurred by wage-earners annually and legislation is needed to bring about improvements in this safety field," he said.

The union president urged passage of laws providing a secret primary ballot, and equal job opportunity regardless of race, color or creed in Illinois.

Soderstrom plugged for the election of Democratic U. S. Sen. Paul H. Douglas over his Republican opponent, Joseph T. Meek.

Chrysler Raises Curtain on '55 Cars

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. raised the curtain briefly today on the "long fleet look" of its 1955 automobiles, revealing new body lines frankly patterned after those of the low, sleek sports cars.

Chrysler showed off its new models of Dodge, Plymouth, DeSoto and Chrysler passenger cars, featuring a longer, lower silhouette, a new type wrap-around windshield, an automatic transmission selector lever located on the instrument panel and completely redesigned suspensions and frames.

The cars are scheduled for public introduction about mid-November.

Caused by Heaviest Rain in City's History

14 Dead in Chicago
Area, Five Others
In Wisconsin

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago today mopped up the debris from a multi-million dollar flood which sent the Chicago River pouring into skyscraper basements, forced hundreds from their homes and disrupted industry and transportation.

Flood waters caused by the heaviest rain in Chicago's history inflicted damage estimated conservatively in the city proper at 10 million dollars. But total damage in the metropolitan area, including 62 suburbs, was expected to soar far above that.

Fourteen deaths were attributed to the storm in the Chicago area and five others in Wisconsin. Two of the deaths were caused by heart attacks and the rest by automobile accidents on flooded streets and highways.

At the height of the storm all railroad traffic at two of this great rail network's major depots was halted, and some of the nation's top trains were stalled.

Service returned to normal at 8 a. m. today at the Dearborn St. Station, used by the Santa Fe, the Erie, the Wabash, the Monon and the Grand Trunk. The station itself was not flooded but tracks south of it were underwater.

Union Station Flooded
At Union Station operations were at a standstill. Basements, tracks and baggage chutes were flooded by the overflow from the Chicago River. The station serves the Burlington, the Pennsylvania, the Milwaukee Road and the Gulf, Mobile and Ohio.

Burlington suburban trains let commuters off at the 14th St. station, several blocks south of the big downtown depot.

The Union Station and the Chicago Daily News Building, both of which lie along the west bank of the river, appeared to be the hardest hit among the downtown buildings.

The Daily News had 40 feet of water in its basement and sub-basements. Flood waters ruined between 250 and 300 rolls of paper stored beneath the press room. The News, a Knight newspaper, published by using the facilities of the Chicago Tribune and Chicago American.

Across the river, water lapped at the basement windows of the huge Kemper Building, which houses the Chicago Civic Opera Theater. A spokesman for the building management, however, said there was no water in the basement and that facilities were normal.

IFL President Asks Increase In Jobless Pay

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — The president of the Illinois State Federation of Labor today called for a boost in Illinois unemployment compensation benefits from $28.50 to at least $38 a week.

Reuben G. Soderstrom said in a speech prepared for delivery at the opening session of the ISFL's 72nd annual convention the maximum benefits should be raised to at least half the average weekly wage in Illinois, which he said is $76 per week.

Soderstrom said this was the intent when the first unemployment compensation act was passed 17 years ago. Then, he said, maximum benefits were $16, or 55 per cent of the average wage of $29.50.

The Future Of FDR Jr.

Editorial — BY BRUCE BLOSSAT
When Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., made it to Congress a few years back, the more apoplectic detractors of the Roosevelt clan quickly foresaw—in their imaginations—his climb to the political heights his father had occupied.

The New Yorker magazine summarized their distress in a cartoon showing an irate gentleman propped up in a hospital bed, a thermometer jammed between his teeth, and an icebag on his head. A doctor taking his pulse tried to soothe him with:

"Don't worry. 'That boy' isn't in the White House yet."

Perhaps these detractors took considerable heart when FDR, Jr., failed to win the Democratic nomination for New York governor. They may have thought, wishfully, that this put finish on the young man's larger ambitions.

But of course it does not. Roosevelt shrewdly accepted nomination for state attorney general when the nomination for governor went to Averell Harriman. And that was a move that can hardly fail to nurture his more distant hopes.

If Harriman wins, Roosevelt will be prominently placed in the line of succession. Should Harriman lose, Roosevelt's prospect of getting the next shot at the job will be greatly enhanced.

Most important of all for Roosevelt's political future, he has taken a step that will put him in good stead with his party's political managers. His gubernatorial candidacy, though it had a good deal of unsteady "regular" support, tended to be a sort of lone-wolf operation without the blessings of the powerful New York City leaders.

But now he has proved himself sporting enough to accept defeat in that aim, to accept a subordinate nomination and lend the strength of his name to the Democratic ticket. For thus being "regular," the New York City bosses may remember him more kindly in 1958, especially if Harriman does not make it this time.

Roosevelt's mistakes in 1954 seemed to be that he tried to go ahead too fast, and that he relied on the wrong people to get him there. He thought he could build up such strength that the New York City leaders would have no choice but to take him.

But they foresaw that if he won on that basis he would owe them practically nothing and therefore would be almost totally unmanageable. Nothing so distresses a political manager as doing being denied the opportunity to manage.

Having now bowed gracefully and made himself a member of the "team," Roosevelt may in future years win the New York City backing he could not compel this time. For the leaders have forced him to slow down, to observe their own rules, to be "regular."

That surely is their major concern. For they are not unmindful of the magic of the Roosevelt name at the polls. They just want their star to be hitched to their wagon, and to have the vehicle roll when they think the time is right.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says: Franco-German friendship could be mended by letter from America; understanding between nations can't come from diplomatic covenants; Italian Communies defeated by letter campaign.

WASHINGTON — During the winter of 1953 while in Paris, I suggested to friends in the Quai d'Orsay that the mayor of Paris invite Mayor Ernst Reuter of Berlin, a great champion of democratic freedoms, to come to Paris as a guest of France and as a gesture of friendship between the French and German people.

It seemed to me that the united European army had to be based on something firmer than a pact between politicians, and that if the French people had a chance to know Mayor Reuter for what he was—a rugged battler for a peaceful Europe—a start would be made toward better understanding between two ancient and sometimes bitter rivals.

The French seemed to like the idea, but suggested that it might be easier for them to overcome the local French prejudice if Mayor Reuter invited the mayor of Paris to visit Berlin first. Then the visit could be reciprocated.

So I put the idea up to Mayor Reuter, whom I had come to know during several visits to Germany. He made no promises but seemed open to persuasion.

Perhaps I didn't press the matter hard enough. Anyway, like a lot of other things, the idea drifted on a sea of good intentions, until I was shocked one morning to find that Mayor Reuter had died. He was one of the few Germans who could have electrified France and helped break down the war of suspicion that has disrupted relations between those two countries—and the peace of Europe—for 80 years. And he was dead.

PEOPLE-TO-PEOPLE PEACE

However, perennial optimist that I am, I still do not think relations between France and Germany are beyond the point of saving. And though they have deteriorated badly of late, the recent Herculean efforts of Anthony Eden and John Foster Dulles have given new hope and a breathing space.

However, these two gentlemen can't build the peace alone.

The basic fact we have to remember is still just the same as it was when I talked to Mayor Reuter—namely that treaties are no stronger than the public opinion behind them; that a European defense pact is as flimsy as the sands of time unless the people who have to shoulder arms in each other's defense, in brief, that the peace of Europe rests upon friendship and understanding between the two rival countries which hitherto have been torn apart by three major wars.

This is something the diplomats don't always realize. They can sit with other diplomats around the conference table. They can sign protocols and covenants. But none is worth more than a marriage license unless the signatory countries, like the newlywed couple, want to work at the job of getting along together.

U. S. ISOLATION

Of late, I have detected that the American people are getting a bit fed up with our old friends and former allies. I don't especially blame them. We have taken a lot of unmerited criticism. But, on the other hand, world peace, if we can attain it, is a lot more important than being called a few names, or crawling into our hole in a huff and saying to heck with the world.

So I have a suggestion to make.

It would have a revitalizing, electrifying effect if a couple of million Americans wrote letters to their friends and relatives in Europe—especially France and Germany—urging them to forget ages-old bitterness and pull together for the peace of the world. It would be especially important if these Americans told their European friends and relatives that the United States is ready to stand behind them—if these suspicions are buried.

Obviously, the official position of the Eisenhower administration makes it possible for the individual American to say this. This is the official policy of the United States today. However, when the assuring word is personal, when it comes from one individual to another individual, then it counts for a lot more than any pronouncement by a government.

LETTERS TO PARIS AND BONN

Furthermore, think of the effect if Premier Mendes-France in Paris and Chancellor Adenauer in Bonn received a slew of letters from Americans urging unity between France and Germany. Imagine the effect if Adenauer could go before the German Bundestag and tell its members that 2,000,000 Americans had written him urging that Germany and France bury the hatchet, heal old wounds and pull together for the peace of Europe.

Coming right now, when Molotov is doing his best to upset the hopeful Eden-Dulles compromise, such a batch of mail in the hands of the German chancellor could strengthen his hand enormously. Similar mail would also strengthen the "cooperation hand" of Premier Mendes-France.

Once before, in the spring of 1948, when the new republic of Italy was going to the polls for the first time, I suggested that Americans write their friends and relatives in Italy urging them to vote against the Communist regime. As a result, an average of a million letters a week cleared through the New York post office for Italy and the Communists were given a resounding defeat.

The American people are a bit more tired now, more blasé, more discouraged. But, as the friendship train and the democracy letters to Italy proved too clearly, there is nothing more forceful in foreign relations than people-to-people diplomacy.

I may be over-optimistic. But I think nothing would give the people of Europe—especially France and Germany—a bigger shot in the arm, a better lift along the difficult road to unity than a literal deluge of letters right now from their friends and relatives. And the prime ministers of France and Germany would get equal help.

Note—And incidentally, if there's anyone who can't afford the extra postage (ordinary mail—eight cents; and airmail—fifteen cents to either Paris or Bonn), send the letter to me—care of Drew Pearson, Washington, D. C.—and I'll tap some of my friends for the extra stamps.

Many Auto Parts Made of Plastics

DETROIT 12—Plastics, which go into squeeze bottles and shower curtains, are finding increased uses in the family auto.

The average car now has several hundred parts made of plastics, ranging from steering wheels to seat covers and from radiator ornaments to tail light lenses. But most of the plastic parts are not visible to the motorist's eye.

An early use of plastics in autos was a distributor cap weighing less than half a pound. It was pioneered in 1915 by Bakelite Co., a division of Union Carbide and Carbon Corp., the world's largest supplier of plastics.

Because of their electrical insulating properties, plastics first found general use in the ignition system. Coil casing, gaskets and battery terminals were made of plastics which could resist moisture, acids and oils.

Sleek sports car bodies—latest wonders of the automotive industry—merely mark another step in the plastic parade for cars.

On Production Line

Back in 1916, laminated plastics formed the first silent timing gears. The development of a brake lining made of asbestos textile combined with Bakelite resins provided greater driving control after 1920. The same material was used to improve clutch facings and other friction parts.

Safety glass in reality is a "sandwich" of two sheets of glass bonded together with resins. The hard, glossy paints baked onto car bodies also utilize synthetic resins.

Vinyl plastics often are used for upholstery, frottable pads and arm rests, as well as for such hidden purposes as weather stripping and wiring insulation.

The auto production line also makes wide use of plastics. Among the newest tools are massive dies of tough plastic which stamp out body panels from sheet steel.

Even polyethylene—now known as the "squeeze bottle plastic"—has become part of the modern car. It goes into spring liners.

Highest Naval Rank

Highest rank ever created in the United States Navy was that of Admiral of the Navy, created in 1899 for George Dewey. The rank expired upon his death in 1917.

Daily News Forced To Use Facilities Of Rival Papers

CHICAGO — The Chicago Daily News used the facilities of other newspapers to get out its editions today in the wake of Chicago's floods.

The flooding Chicago River cracked through a wall Sunday night and piled up about 40 feet of water in the newspapers' sub-basements.

Between 250 and 300 rolls of newsprint, valued at about 30,000, were ruined.

Arthur E. Hall, News general manager, announced today's edition would be printed on the presses of the Chicago Tribune. The engraving plant of the Chicago American was used for preparing news picture plates.

Vandercook was quoted as saying "Jungle magic is the jungle people's science," differing with modern science only in degree. "Black Art" considered evil generally has been a source of much good.

Outclasses all tractors of its type! You get five working speeds and one road speed—six in all—in this brand-new Oliver Super 55.
Included is the super low you've always wanted—only 1 1/2 miles per hour at full engine speed. Cut back the throttle and you can slow down to 3/4 m.p.h. for those creeping crawl jobs. Best of all, this super low is matched to the recommended PTO speed of 545 r.p.m. Now you can handle tough PTO operations with less difficulty, less crop loss.
Low, compact and heavy, this 2-3 plow Super 55 also outpicks all tractors in its class. Powered with a modern, thrifty, high-compression gasoline engine or full diesel. Pick the one that saves you the most.
See the new, versatile Super 55 with its built-in hydraulic system and 3-point hitch linkage, double-disc brakes, independently controlled PTO and ball-type unit that makes steering twice as easy. Get the Super 55 story before you buy!

Federal Director Says Administration Has Given REA Free Hand; No Political Controls

By DON CHAMBERLAIN

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (Special)—The Eisenhower administration has supplied telephone service during its 21 months of tenure to more farm families than were serviced in the preceding four years (1949-1952), Anchor Nelson, Washington, Federal Rural Electrification Director, told a press conference here last week. He praised Ike for giving REA a free hand, said REA is not hampered by political controls.
Nelson, here for a three-state (Illinois, Iowa and Wisconsin) regional meeting, told newsmen that REA also has increased electric power for farms to the extent that there is less than seven per cent of the farm population without electricity. He said Illinois farms are 95 per cent supplied, that the remaining five per cent is spread statewide.
Nelson, a former lieutenant governor of Minnesota, and himself a big farmer, says there is no disagreement between REA and private utilities. He said that REA gets about half of its power supply from the utilities, 22 per cent from government power projects, eight per cent from municipally-owned plants and 13 per cent from REA generating plants.
The REA now has $226 million to spend for REA electrification and telephone lines for the current fiscal year (July 1, 1954 - June 30, 1955). Nelson said, adding that $135 million is from a congressional appropriation and the balance is a carry-over from the last fiscal year. He said there is no prospect of the REA being crippled as has been reported.

Nelson said the REA first asked for $55 million, but that the National House of Representatives upped it to $100 million and that a Senate floor amendment by U. S. Senator Paul H. Douglas, Chicago, added the $35 million. He said it was more than he expected and laughed at a suggestion that the Douglas amendment was for publicity purposes.
There is no stunting of growth of REA, Nelson said. He said, "it is obvious that the reason REA got double what it asked from Congress was because REA is a popular program." Nelson estimated the amount which the REA has out in loans to farmers at about $2 billion, 360 million. Interest rate are two per cent and there is no intention to increase the rate.

When atomic energy reaches the point where it is available at low cost REA will buy it, Nelson said. A conference, he said, is scheduled with the Atomic Energy Commission in Washington on October 11 to discuss the prospects of atomic energy power being available at a cost lower than what the REA now spends with utilities and other sources.
Nelson said he is advising farmers to prepare for the advent of atomic power but warns farmers "to let somebody else foot the bill for the costly experimental work in atomic power production if we can be assured of access to what is developed at the time it actually produces power at lower costs." He said borrowers should gain by experience of others.

Secretary of State Charles F. Carpenter has been advised by Vice President Richard Nixon that a small souvenir bronze bust of Abraham Lincoln the Secretary sent him is on display in his Senate presidential office. "I have found just the right spot for it in my office and certainly appreciate your thoughtfulness in sending it to me," Nixon wrote Carpenter.

Agitation for a speed law to slow down traffic on Illinois highways continues. Both Gov. William G. Stratton and Secretary Carpenter are credited with favoring enactment of a state law to limit passenger automobiles to 65 miles per hour in daytime and to 50 at night time. State Safety Director Joseph D. Bibb, Chicago, thinks trucks should be limited to 55 miles in daytime, 40 at night.
Stratton feels however, that the state police force should be increased to properly enforce a speed limit on passenger cars saying that it would mean "round the clock controls."

THE STORY: Somehow the mysterious death of Angelica Jones, sister-in-law of Jim Dunn's client, Mrs. Kit Carlson, seems to tie in with an unsolved death on the West Coast. Even the woman sheriff, Mrs. Toby Argyle, thinks Angelica's death may be "another" accident. But Jim Dunn does not think it is an accident. Someone had moved the body.

XVI

Mrs. Gelstrap whined. "I'm just a working woman. I do what I'm told. The missus said for me to come to Denver. I took the train because I don't like to get off the ground. She met me at the depot, brought me here."

"You've never been here before?"
"No."
"You're lying," Agnes said wearily. "You were up here shortly after the wedding. For heaven's sake, if you must lie, do it with a little chance of success. Around here, we know what goes on. Particularly about anyone connected with the Carlsons. The Carlsons just about support the whole community of Creek Junction. We don't cater to tourists; we cater to the Carlsons and it's a year-round job." For a moment her lips set in even grimmer lines, then assumed a twist as if she had tasted vinegar. "Now then, Mrs. Gelstrap, you paid a flying visit to this place last summer. That was when we in Creek Junction understood Peter Carlson and his new wife were going to honeymoon here. At least, in the little cabin. Peter Carlson went to considerable trouble fixing up that place."

Jim Dunn was beginning to believe the sheriff really considered the death of Angelica an accident. At least she was giving out considerable information. He had learned why the caretaker's cabin was fixed up the way it was. It was intended for a honeymoon house.

"I told the missus about this place," Mrs. Gelstrap said. She showed no trace of embarrassment at having been caught in a lie, merely retreated to another position. "She decided she wanted to go to California for the honeymoon instead. Why, there wasn't even anyplace fixed for me here then!"

"Might have been the general idea," Agnes suggested. "Any particular reason why you should have to be along on the honeymoon?"

"The missus depends on me," Sue Gelstrap said smugly.

"Too bad for her," Agnes snapped. "Especially if you go around lapping up all the liquor in sight." Mrs. Gelstrap giggled. "There's still plenty if you want a little snifter, Sheriff."

Jim realized a beautiful enmity was developing between the cook and the sheriff.

Feet pounded across the porch and the living room door pushed open. Two men came in, and one of them was the doctor. He had been conditioned so he expected the doctor too to be a woman.

Sheriff Agnes wasted no time in talking. "In the basement, Doctor," she said. "I'll want to know if the injuries causing death could have been made by the fall of the elevator."

The doctor nodded, turned around.

"I didn't hear you drive up," Agnes said.

"Should have. You know the racket my car makes." The doctor kept on going this time.

"Score one point for you, Mr. Dunn," Agnes said. "You can't hear a car drive up. Now, suppose you go to the little cabin. Stay there with your wife until I get around to you again."

Jim Dunn told his wife of Miss Wister's story, of the peculiar way she had acted. "I don't get it," he finished. "Honestly, she acted as if she was mad at me about something."

"Probably was," Nancy said. "You snapped at her, from what she said. Probably she'd been doing something for your benefit so naturally she's angry."

The door of the cottage pushed open without any warning knock and Agnes Argyle walked in. "Well, Mr. Dunn. You decided yet whether or not I've sold out to the Carlson?"

Jim was getting tired of having his thoughts explained to him. "Have you?" he snapped.

Agnes looked at Nancy. Her smile softened the bitter planes of her gaunt face. "And this is your wife?"

Jim made the introduction. After that he was ignored. The two women appeared to come to an unspoken understanding.

Jim wondered if it would make any difference if he stood on his head.

Agnes said, "Suppose you tell me about this, Mrs. Dunn."

"Nancy," she corrected.

"Yes. Tell me, Nancy, all about your contacts with Mrs. Kit. Right from the beginning."

Jim coughed. "Just a minute before we go into that."

Agnes Argyle said, "Go away. Go help the men or something. Your wife and I want to talk."

Jim went into the basement. The body was gone. The elevator had been raised another foot or so. Blood on the hard-packed dirt floor was darkening and hardening. From the living room above came the shrill sound of a ringing telephone. The floor above creaked with the passage of a heavy body.

Jim borrowed a flashlight from the deputy, returned to the elevator. He directed the light under the partially raised platform. There were marks there all right, indications of dragging. He knew now why Angelica's clothing had been so dirt covered.

West Germany Given Permit For Civil Airline

BONN, Germany (AP)—The three Western allies have granted West Germany permission to operate her own civil airline in another major step toward equality with the world's free nations, allied sources said tonight.

The new Lufthansa German airline expects to begin operations March 1 when a ceremonial flight will pass over the Bonn residence of Federal President Theodor Heuss.

Four twin-engine Convair 340 airliners on order in the United States will be flown to West Germany "shortly" by German pilots who trained in England, the allied sources said.

Lufthansa—the same name as the pre-war German airline—also plans to buy several Super Constellations for international traffic and is known to be considering at least one British type plane.

Lou Boudreau is Fired as Manager Of the Red Sox

BOSTON (AP)—Lou Boudreau, whose contract had another year to go, was fired as manager of the Boston Red Sox today and Mike (Pinky) Higgins Jr., director of the team's top farm club, was named his successor for the next two years.

Boudreau, whose "youth movement" in the Red Sox failed to bring the American league pennant to Boston, formerly skippered the Cleveland Indians and was a brilliant shortstop in his playing days.

Higgins, 45, former Red Sox third baseman, managed the Sox' Louisville club this season.

Sox General Manager Joe Cronin said he personally telephoned Boudreau this morning at his Harvey, Ill., home, notifying him of his dismissal.

Badgers-Purdue Game to Top Big Ten Slate

CHICAGO (AP)—An early favorite and a late challenger for the Big Ten football championship, Wisconsin and Purdue, meet Saturday at Madison in the headline contest of a four-game conference slate.

The Badgers, unbeaten in three contests with one league win, probably will be slight favorites for the battle, but Purdue, with two victories and one tie, could win without producing an upset.

The match should feature passing with Wisconsin pitting its two expert tossers, Jim Miller and Jim Haluska, against Purdue's sophomore Len Dawson, who has thrown eight touchdown passes this season.

Badgers Edge on Ground

On the ground, though, the edge has to go to Wisconsin by virtue of its two-time all-conference fullback, Alan Ameche. But Wisconsin has not found any halfback standouts so far while Purdue has balanced power at the other three backfield positions.

The winner of the scrap should rate with Ohio State as the major challenger for the league title. The Buckeyes, who play Iowa Saturday, hold first place temporarily with two league wins while Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan each have won one Big Ten game without defeat.

Other Big Ten games Saturday will be Illinois at Minnesota and Michigan at Northwestern while in non-league battles Michigan State appears at Notre Dame and Indiana at Missouri.

Wisconsin scored a major win Saturday as Ameche scored twice, the second time with less than a minute to play, for a 13-7 win over previously unbeaten Rice.

Purdue had to stage a last half comeback on marches of 65 and 66 yards to tie Duke, 13-13. Duke tallied twice in the first half on rushing plays.

Ohio State swamped Illinois, 40-7, as Bobby Watkins scored twice, once on a 41-yard run, while Minnesota pummeled Northwestern, 26-7, on 24-yard runs and John Baumgartner ran 43 for a touchdown.

Michigan upset a two-touchdown favored Iowa team, 14-13, for its second win of the season, while Michigan State gained its first victory, 21-14, over Indiana as John Matsock returned a punt 75 yards for a touchdown and set up the winning tally with a 27-yard run.

Notre Dame swamped Pittsburgh, 33-0, as reserve quarterback Tom Carey passed for two touchdowns.

Liddle to Hurl Exhibition Game Here Next Sunday

Don Liddle, of the New York Giants, who helped write the famous Milwaukee baseball story of 1953 and added the final chapter to the 1954 world series at Cleveland, can be seen in action next Sunday at the town and diamond.

Liddle, who was contacted by the Merchants and the Nash Ramblers baseball clubs with the cooperation of Henry Winkelman, has promised to hurl an exhibition game in Harrisburg to aid the two local clubs in an enclosed baseball park for the 1955 season. Liddle, who will be hurling for the Mt. Carmel team, will be opposed by a selected team from the two local ball clubs with Charles Griffith as his opponent on the mound. Griffith, a tall right handed fast baller, is the property of the Milwaukee Braves. Griffith, a resident of Wauson, who was obtained by the Braves from the White Sox farm chain and will report to the Braves camp next spring, gave a preview of his power Sunday afternoon by striking out the youngsters' side in the final frame of the game with an older team.

More Trouble Ahead for Top Ranked Teams After Week of Near Upsets

By United Press

College football's top ranked teams came staggering today out of a weekend of near-disaster only to find they're running into a lot more trouble just ahead.

Although Iowa and Southern California were the only clubs ranked among the country's top 10 to be upset, the weekend just finished was only an eyelash away from being a debacle for the big teams. Only three of them won easily—three others just barely won and two more, Purdue and Duke, played a 13-13 tie in perhaps the top game.

For example, national leader Oklahoma fumbled six times and just managed to nip Texas, 14-7. Second-ranked UCLA was only an extra point better than Washington, 21-20. And fourth-ranked Wisconsin, watched by a national television audience, needed Alan Ameche's touchdown with 50 seconds left to turn almost certain defeat into a 13-7 win over Rice.

Fifth-ranked Iowa bowed, 14-13, to Michigan, a rival it hasn't beaten in 30 years. And Southern California, playing under the Friday night lights, was walloped, 20-7, by Texas Christian.

But look at the schedule lying in wait for the big teams this week end—it almost guarantees upsets.

To begin with, four of the top 10 are matched against each other with Purdue facing Wisconsin and Iowa meeting 10th-ranked Ohio State. Duke has to come right back against a fired-up Army team that showed its true calibre by crushing Dartmouth, 60-6. UCLA must face a Stanford team that will be burning to avenge a 25-0 beating by Navy.

Ninth-ranked Notre Dame, after bounding back from its Purdue defeat to swamp Pittsburgh, 33-0, must clash with dangerous though twice-beaten Michigan State. Southern California goes against Oregon and seventh-ranked Mississippi against Tulane.

Oklahoma, however, is expected to have an easier time against Kansas in the opening game on its Big Seven schedule. In fact, the Sooners already have met the toughest teams on their schedule and will be favored heavily in each game hereafter as they gun for an unbeaten season.

Top Heroes
Among the weekend's other top heroes were:

Wisconsin's Ameche, who averaged 4.3 yards per try as he scored both of the Badgers' touchdowns, including the plunge from the one-foot line for the winner in the final minute; Dean Loucks of Yale, whose one-yard, fourth-period plunge meant a 13-7 win over Columbia; sub quarterback Tom Carey, who pitched two TD passes in Notre Dame's win over Pitt; Pete Vann, who threw three touchdowns passes in Army's win over Dartmouth; Charley Boxold of Maryland, whose 66-yard run set up the TD that created a 13-13 tie with Wake Forest; Lenny Moore and Ron Younker, who ran 55 and 80 yards for touchdowns as Penn State routed Virginia, 34-7.

Billy Teas, who ran 77 yards for a TD and gained 51 more in five more tries as Georgia Tech downed Louisiana State, 30-20; Bob McNamara scored two touchdowns in Minnesota's 26-7 victory over Northwestern; Preston Carpenter, whose fourth-period field goal gave Arkansas a 21-20 upset of Baylor and the only unbeaten record in the Southwest conference; Bobby Watkins, who scored two TD's to pace Ohio State in a 40-7 rout of Illinois; ball-carriers Bob Pascal and Bernard Blaney of Duke and quarterback Frankie Guttman of Purdue who stood out in their 13-13 tie; Johnny Matsock, whose 75-yard punt return TD led Michigan State to a 21-14 win over Indiana; passing aces Duane Nutt and John Roach of SMU, who clicked for 12 out of 18 to beat Missouri, 25-6.

George Shaw, whose passing led Oregon to a 33-27 win over California; soph quarter back Bobby Cox, whose three TD passes gave UCLA a 21-20 win over Washington; Bob Iverson, who ran to two touchdowns and passed to another as Washington State beat Oregon State, 34-6; Verle Cray, whose field goal with four minutes left gave Houston a 10-7 win over Texas A & M; and 221-pound John Bayuk of Colorado, who gained 183 rushing and scored four touchdowns in a 40-18 victory over Arizona.

Floyd Patterson Meets Ferdinand In Bout Tonight

NEW YORK (AP)—Light heavyweight contender Floyd Patterson of Brooklyn, hottest youngster in boxing, gets a stiff test tonight against dangerous Esau Ferdinand of San Francisco in a television fight at St. Nicholas Arena.

The bout is limited to eight rounds because Patterson, 1952 Olympic middleweight champion and 1953 "Rookie of the Year," is only 19.

Despite his youth and comparative inexperience, Floyd is favored at 13-5 to spoil Ferdinand's New York debut. He is favored because of speed and punch.

Patterson has had but 16 professional bouts. He won 15, including 10 knockouts. He lost only to ex-champion Joey Maxim on a widely disputed decision last June 7.

Ferdinand, 24, has had 56 fights. His record is 39-10-7, including 10 knockouts. He was stopped once on a knockout by Charlie Green in July 1953, but Manager Dolph Thomas claims rugged Esau never has been knocked off his feet. He is probably the most dangerous puncher Patterson ever faced.

Urge Expansion Of Smithsonian

WASHINGTON AP—Plans are being made to convert the Smithsonian Institution—already Washington's top tourist attraction—into a truly national museum representing the history, science, industry and engineering of the country.

Initial steps of the program were taken when Rep. George A. Dondero (R-Mich.), chairman of the public works committee of the House, introduced a bill in Congress to authorize appropriation for a new museum building for the Smithsonian. The legislation would provide for $900,000 for construction of a building to replace the Smithsonian's Arts and Industries Building.

Dr. Leonard Carmichael, secretary of the institution, has described the bill's introduction as encouraging and a step toward fulfillment of the Smithsonian's program to set up a museum depicting the technological and industrial growth of the United States which would be consistent with the traditions and the stature of the United States in the world.

More Room Needed

The new structure would be located on the north side of the Mall in line with the National Gallery of Art and the National History Museum. The new museum would be more spacious than the old quarters now in use.

Dr. Carmichael has observed that the old building no longer is adequate for the large number of collections it must contain or for the 15,000 to 25,000 visitors it receives daily.

As described by Dr. Carmichael, a series of halls would be given over to periods of U. S. history, with exhibits reflecting the life and thought of the various eras and their part in national development.

These periods would be illustrated with documents, machines, costumes, personal effects of prominent Americans, weapons, and other objects from the various sections of the Smithsonian.

Other exhibits would depict the evolution of individual devices and objects, with emphasis on the role they have played in the country's progress.

McCarthy Receives Support from Senator Capehart

WASHINGTON AP—Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy drew the all-out public support of Sen. Homer E. Capehart today in his campaign to prevent his censure by the Senate next month.

But Sen. George A. Smathers (D-Fla.), a member of the Senate's powerful southern Democratic bloc, predicted anew that a "substantial majority" of the Senate will vote for McCarthy's censure.

Capehart declared that he not only will vote against the censure motion when it comes up but will defend McCarthy on the Senate floor.

"We will prove before we are through," Capehart said, that the subcommittee which investigated McCarthy's finances was "not duly constituted."

Smathers said that after a "thorough study" of the report issued by the six-man Senate committee that investigated the censure charges that he is "prepared to vote to support this committee." He lauded the group's "splendidly judicial and painstakingly thorough" inquiry.

Dr. Robert Allyn, Southern Illinois university's first president, was a Methodist minister who served as president of McKendree College, Lebanon, Ill., before coming to Southern. (SIU)
